VANILLA BEANS.

The making of vanilla extract is not a complicated process but it does call for expert knowledge of material. Vanilla beans come in all grades, from the worthless to the best. The finest beans are grown and cured in Mexico. Their value is about double that of pure silver. Every conceivable device is used to adulterate and deceive the public into buying worthless vanilla. Never buy a bottle labeled compound or modified extract or one in which the name vanilla is misspelled. The standard strength of a drug store extract is ten per cent, but the laws of Wisconsin allow peddlers and canvassers to sell three per cent extract and label it Pure Vanilla.

The pure food guarantee has nothing to do with the quality. Pure Vanilla is pure vanilla whether made from worthless beans or beans worth double their weight in silver. The worth of the beans is in their fine flavor.

Mr. Pionke, our graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, makes our vanilla from the finest beans. It is double strength, absolutely pure, of the nicest flavor, aged for at least four years and sold at 15c the ounce, 2 ounces 25c. We ask you to buy a bottle today. Use one-half the amount you use of any other extract in your next frosting or cream, learn its rich flavor and strength. We know you will always be our customer. MOTORCYCLE RACES WERE HUGE SUCCESS

RACES AT JANESVILLE DRIVING PARK SATURDAY AFTERNOON ATTENDED BY CROWD OF ABOUT TWO THOUSAND PEOPLE.

ONLY ONE ACCIDENT

Occurred to Mar Pleasure of Day, O. Perry of Fort Atkinson, Who Fell From Machine in Second Race on Turn, Suffering Slight Concussion of Brain.

With but one accident to mar the day's pleasure, when O. Perry, of Fort Atkinson, who was injured in the two mile novelty race, suffering slight concussion of the brain, everything went off smoothly at the big motorcycle meet at the Janesville Driving Park and the races were, every way a success. Perry's injuries, however, are not serious and recovery will not be delayed. He was also bruised about the head and face. The accident occurred at the end of the first mile when Perry was slowing down at the tape. The riders, after completing the first mile were supposed to stop and drink a glass of lemonade and then go on again. Charles De Salvo of Chicago, riding an Excelsior machine, had just finished drinking and had stepped onto the track when Perry came along. Perry's machine struck De Salvo and knocked him down but the shock to Perry over the handlebars. One of the handlebars struck Perry in the abdomen and completely knocked the breath out of the young man. He lay quite freely and it was at first feared he had broken his neck. Drs. G. B. Hilstad and C. H. Oliver, who were in the crowd, resuscitated the youth and he was taken to Mercy Hospital later where he was attended by Dr. T. W. Nuzum.

Some of the best known and fastest riders were entered in the contests and although no speed records were broken, some fast time was made. Charles De Salvo of Chicago, amateur champion of the world, was present and in the tenth race in which he came in second, made the last of the four miles in 1:08. The Salvo drove a single cylinder Excelsior machine. Timmons, who won this race, was riding a two-cylinder Indian. Cyrus Wade of Milwaukee, ("Daredevil") was another of the speed artists at the races, winning the counter brake offered by the New Departure company for the rider winning the most firsts. Wade copied the money in four events and Daine of Rockford was his nearest competitor with three first prizes. Protest against Daine was made in the first and eighth races on the grounds that he had ridden for prizes and should have been excluded from the novelty race.

The real speed event was the tenth race, the ten mile contest for machines 61 cubic inches. The contest from the start was between T. L. Timmons, Beloit; Charles De Salvo, Chicago; and C. W. Fiske, Beloit. The two Beloit men rode double cylinder Indian machines. Fiske led for the first few laps, then Timmons took the lead and held it until the finish, making a grand stand play crossing the tape riding his machine without touching the handlebars. De Salvo at the start seemed to be only a third but in the eighth cut down the distance between himself and Fiske and beat Fiske in at the finish. The race between these two as they were coming down the stretch was the most exciting part of the program and the crowd stood up and cheered De Salvo when he crossed the line ahead of Fiske. Wade came in for applause in the fourth race when he and Stevens crossed the line almost together. Stevens lost a little lead over Wade, Wade had made a start when the race started and came up fast and distanced his other rivals.

The success of the event was largely due to the efforts of Manager Harry McDaniel of the motorcycle racing committee of the Janesville Park association. In whose charge the event had been placed. He worked faithfully and hard to make the event worth while and secured results. The Harley Davidson company of Milwaukee, was unable to send their regular men and Mr. McDaniel had to get others to take their places.

Cigarette smokers caused to interrupt the races in the grand stand during the races. Cigarette ends, dropped on the floor of the grand stand started a smolder and began to spread a program which had dropped on the floor. The scent of the burning wood, however, attracted the attention of the spectators and a bottle of pop was used as an extinguisher. A similar occurrence took place in the west end of the grand stand and burned a small hole in the boards but a dipper of water was thrown on the burning tobacco and smoldering boards by the mayor. Chief of the Fire Department H. C. Klein was there with his automobile and chemical equipment to act in case of necessity.

Perry's first accident Saturday occurred at the west turn of the track. Losing his balance while making the turn in the second race, his machine slipped out from under him, but he was up again and off in a second, coming in third at the finish.

Five riders were entered in the slow race for the silver cup given by Van Pool Bros., but only two finished the race. The rules of the new regulation that each contestant keep his engine running all the time and travel in a straight line. This was too much for some of the riders. The officials of the meet were H. H. McDaniel, manager; John Anderson, referee; Leonard Mathews, starter; Roy Clarke, announcer; Ray Lyons, clerk of course; Ed. Dunsell, J. F. Fisher and Albert Griddle, judges; and F. K. Daine, W. J. Hall and J. D. Hirscher, timekeepers. The award of prizes was made at the close of the races. The results follow:

FUNERAL IS HELD ON DAY OF DEATH

William R. Hurlburt of Evansville, Died on Saturday and Buried Same Day At Own Request.—Was Old Resident.

Evansville, Aug. 28.—After many months of suffering, death came to the relief of William R. Hurlburt at six o'clock Saturday morning. The immediate cause of his demise was a stroke of paralysis brought on by a complication of diseases. He was eighty-three years of age. In accordance with his request he was buried the same day he died, and the funeral services took place at his home on Montgomery Court Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. Rev. Chas. E. Connor, pastor of the Methodist church having charge of the last sad rites.

The burial was made in Maple Hill cemetery beside his wife, who had preceded the husband to the home beyond eleven years ago. He was laid to rest in a casket which he made for himself twenty-five years ago. It was of hard wood and stained the color of rose wood. He had refined it two or three times, the draperies having become discolored during the many years it had stood in waiting. It is said that this is not the first time he had occupied the casket, for when in process of making he had laid in it to satisfy himself that the measurements were correct.

Mr. Hurlburt was born in Essex County, New York, and at the age of fifteen came with his parents to Evansville. On August 3, 1853, he was married and the couple moved to Minnesota, where they lived several years, returning again to Evansville in 1879. He was one of the earliest settlers of Evansville and was well thought of, being a man of kindly heart and industrious habits. The only surviving relative that he has lives in the East.

WHAT READJUSTMENT WOULD REALLY MEAN TO JANESVILLE CITY

down by Mayor Nichols and City Clerk Cummings and was finally fixed $5,000 over the assessed valuation of 1910. Yet in making his complaint to the state tax commission he made no reference to the Electric Light Company yet named other concerns, whose assessment he made no objection to.

Whether you like it or not and without regard to the intrinsic fairness of unfairness of the situation, you have got to tax manufacturing properties in view of the basis adopted in other cities. Manufacturing like every other form of capital gradually gravitates to the center, where the burdens are lightest. Janesville must meet this condition without regard to fine theory. Capital must be attracted to a city or its real estate promptly falls in value. What would it avail a man if his taxes were reduced one half, if at the same time he experienced a big reduction in his property value? It is almost impossible to get capital interested in the building of houses in Janesville under present conditions, but let the income from such property be further reduced by driving out of the city a large percentage of our skilled mechanics, and Janesville real estate will then hit rock bottom and stay there. If Janesville wants to publish broadcast throughout the state that locally invested capital is to be "soaked" with taxation then we might just as well wind up our booster movement for the grass grow in the street and drop entirely out of the procession. A half a million shop is said to be dangerous but no more than a self-appointed reformer running amok.

The tax commission has set the 12th day of September for the hearing. At that time the question of a readjustment of the cities taxes will be decided upon. Meantime the present assessment will be in force. The council will meet on the first Monday in October and decide on the tax levy. The city clerk will be instructed to make out the tax roll for the present year, the city treasurer will receive it in December and begin his collection of taxes.

Should the tax commission decide that the assessment was not just, should decide to order another assessment, such an assessment will be made by assessors probably sent here from outside. It will cost the city in the neighborhood of a thousand dollars for the following state law it would be paid in next year's assessment.

Chapter 263, laws of 1911. An act—To create section 1087—57 a fifth statute relating to the readjustment of property for taxation.

The people of the State of Wisconsin represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1.—There is added to the statutes a new section to read: Section 1087—57. If any such readjustment cannot be completed in time to take the place of the original assessment made in such district for said year, the clerk of the district shall levy and apportion the taxes for that year upon the basis of the original assessment roll, and when the readjustment is completed the inequalities in the taxes levied under the original assessment shall be remedied and compensated in the levy and apportionment of taxes in such district next following the completion of said readjustment in the following manner: Each tract of real estate, and, as to personal property, each taxpayer, whose tax shall be determined by such readjustment to have been relatively too high, shall be credited a sum equal to the amount of taxes charged on the original assessment in excess of the amount which would have been charged had such readjustment been made in time; and each tract of real estate, and, as to personal property, each taxpayer, whose tax shall be determined by such readjustment to have been relatively too low, shall be charged in addition to all other taxes, a sum equal to the difference between the amount of taxes charged upon such unequal original assessment and the amount which would have been charged had such readjustment been made in time.

The tax commission, any of its members, or its authorized agent, shall at any time have access to all assessment and tax rolls heretofore referred to for the purpose of assessing the local clerk and in order that the results of the readjustment may be carried into effect.

Section 2.—This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

Approved June 5, 1911.

If Mr. Maxwell, Tax payers, wanted the rates of the county adjusted he has begun at the wrong end of the horn to do it. It is still evident that he is seeking some campaign issue for a possible campaign for re-election in 1912 and wants the city of Janesville to be the "goat" as stated last Saturday evening.

MILTON JUNCTION WAREHOUSE BURNED

Structure Owned By N. L. Carle Badly Damaged.—Dundie Goods Owned By Borden.—Other Property Was Threatened.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton Junction, Aug. 28.—The Northwestern tobacco warehouse owned by N. L. Carle of Janesville, was badly damaged by a fire Saturday evening and 1910 bundle goods belonging to Fred Borden was also partially destroyed by fire or water.

The alarm was turned in at 8:30 Saturday evening and when the department arrived on the scene the basement and lower floor of the warehouse was ablaze. It was evident that the fire had started in the lower portions of the building and the basement flooring was burned and the lower timbers were all afire. The department sought to extinguish the blaze with the hand apparatus drawing water from a cistern. This did not serve to quench the flames however, and an attachment was made to McGowan water works system and the fire was extinguished about ten o'clock.

As the warehouse a two story affair, is located in the north end of the town and near the stockyards and lumber yards, it was feared that the entire portion of the village adjoining would be set afire. There was a band concert in progress when the alarm was heard and a great crowd quickly gathered at the scene of the conflagration.

The building was not badly damaged but the exact amount of the loss was not stated. The loss on the tobacco was heavy, although not definitely stated. The cause for the fire is not known, but incendiarism is hinted.

The Skin and Not the Blood.

Until recently it has been a generally accepted proposition that eczema was a disease of the blood, and that in order to cure it, the blood must be purified and enriched by internal remedies. Careful experiments and scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is purely skin disease, and curable through the skin alone. A great majority of persons afflicted with eczema have no other ailment, which is accepted as positive proof that it is purely a skin disease. Having established this fact, the chemists of the American Drug and Press Association set about to compound a prescription that would successfully cope with this disease, and after much investigating brought out Meritol Eczema Remedy, the effect of which is marvelous. If you are afflicted with this loathsome disease, do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. You will be surprised at its prompt action, its soothing effect and its permanent results. Reliable Drug Co. are commissioned by the association to sell it in Janesville.

"We are in business for your health."

DO YOU KNOW WHAT TIME DRUGS ARE?

Well, Time Drugs are drugs that deteriorate with age. Today they are full strength and capable of healing. Six months from now, no matter how well they are cared for they are as useless as ashes. Science has been able to determine the life of such drugs. At the Reliable the Time Drugs are dated. It is just a matter of hours, days, weeks, months or years. The druggist who sells drugs that do not produce results might as well close his doors. And from time to time we go over these Time Drugs and eliminate all that have reached the "age limit." Often it means a money loss, but we've got to give YOU good service. We do not deserve credit for this precaution. We are protecting our business.

And the Time Drugs are replaced with fresh stock, and some day, if that isn't used, there will be a third replacement.

You can find drug stores, too many of them, where the Time Drug has no chance. It remains in the bottle six months or six years, according to demand, and when it's wanted there isn't even a thought as to whether it is an honest drug or a failure.

And isn't this another argument in favor of your bringing your prescriptions to the Hanley Bros.

Had Some Evidence.

In a country police court recently a man was charged with shooting a number of pigeons, the property of a farmer. In giving his evidence, the farmer was so careful that he even seemed nervous, and the solicitor for the defense endeavored to frighten him. "Now," he remarked, "are you prepared to swear on oath that this man shot your pigeons?" "I didn't say he shot them," he replied. "I said I suspected him of doing it." "Ah, now we're coming to it. What made you suspect that man?" "Well, firstly, I caught him on my own and a gun. Secondly, I heard a gun go off and saw some pigeons in his pocket—and I don't hardly think them birds flew there and committed suicide."

Gyroscopes for Aeroplanes.

In France Mons. Girardville has been experimenting with model aeroplanes furnished with gyroscopes to insure greater stability. The principle is the same as in the application of gyroscopes to counteract the rolling ships. In a report to the Paris academy of sciences, Mons. Girardville says that his models, when used as gliders without motors, were free from periodic oscillations and that they automatically re-established their equilibrium after being disturbed. The difficulty, of course, is that the gyroscopes introduced an extra weight to be carried. With his models Mons. Girardville used gyroscopes weighing about 12 pounds, and pointing at the rate of 6,000 turns a minute.

INTERFERED WITH OFFICER WHO WAS ARRESTING DRUNK

Fine of Ten Dollars And Costs Assessed Against Thomas Corbitt, Formerly of This City, Now of Beloit.

Experience cost Thomas Corbitt, late of Janesville, but now of Beloit, $12.50 besides considerable rough handling for counselling a man to resist arrest, and Corbitt figures that the lesson he learned was cheap at the price. Corbitt was the last of eleven men arrested in municipal court this morning on various charges, the one against Corbitt being that he advised Don Clemens, another Beloit man, to resist Officer Patrick Fanning, who was arresting Clemens. Clemens was drunk and Officer Fanning started to take the man to the city lockup, but Corbitt wanted to take him away from the officer. He followed the officer and his prisoner to the police station and became aggressive and was thrown into the lockup, after some of the "chastities" had been taken out of him. Corbitt pleaded not guilty but later changed his plea to guilty, and a fine of $10 and costs was fixed. Clemens, who was arrested for drunkenness, pleaded guilty and made arrangements to pay fine of three dollars and costs of $1.50.

Acting Judge Charles H. Lange occupied the bench this morning in place of Municipal Judge C. L. Fink, who is away for a day or so on a trip. Eleven cases were brought before the court this morning.

Straight sentences of ten days each were given Louis Olson and Mike Sullivan, two men with crippled arms, from North Fond du Lac, who had been begging in the Fourth ward. The two were partners and had been in the city three days.

The cases of Charles Ringmeyer and James Staff, who it is alleged, asked for twenty-five cents from Herman Prippell and tried to pick a fight with him when he refused them because they had been drinking, were adjourned to a week from tomorrow and the young men were allowed to go on their own recognizance. Prippell was called to the court room, but said he could not swear to the identity of the youths so immediate prosecution was not taken up.

James Keelin of Chicago, who came here on his way to Alton, Saturday, and got drunk, had a "chick" in the cell last night and fell out of the bunk on which he was lying. Two of his teeth were broken out and he was out about the mouth. His wounds were not healed this morning and his mouth bled at intervals. He went to jail for five days in default of payment of a fine of $3 and costs.

Mike Foley, Pittsburg, and William Sullivan, Holyoke, Mass., were given "the pass" out of town, the judge suspending sentence of $3 and costs until twelve o'clock. Joe Tabber, who came here from Richland Center on Saturday, paid a fine of $3 and costs or $1.10 for drunkenness.

The Howard Simpson Mission at Riverview Park opened its second series of services yesterday at 8 p. m. with a platform service in which many local people took part and at which a fine representative congregation gave rapt attention.

The following took part: the Y. M. C. A. quartet under Dr. F. T. Richards, comprising also Messrs. Kline, Jacobs and Richards, with Mr. S. Richards, his daughter, Miss Richards, and the Misses Stokes furnishing the music, which was of a high order.

The following treated the meeting to well thought out addresses on various topics: Rev. J. W. Scott, Mr. William Howard, Dr. K. Shipman, Mr. S. Richards, and Mrs. H. H. Simpson.

Mr. Simpson preached under difficult conditions in the evening to a well-filled tent. Despite a rolling thunder and lightning electricity the crowd remained wonderfully attentive throughout the forty-five minutes' address.

Mrs. Simpson is to preach this evening at eight o'clock. Meetings each evening at the same time.

REGULAR TERM OF TRAINING SCHOOL IS STARTED TODAY

Over Twenty Students Registered At Opening of Fall Session This Morning—More Expected.

With more than twenty students present the first regular session of the Rock County training school opened most auspiciously at the new quarters in the Jefferson school building. More students are expected to be enrolled before the end of the week and it is estimated now that there will be about thirty who will be enrolled for the course this year. This is regarded as a good number for the first year.

As yet the new desks and seats have not arrived and consequently chairs have been arranged to accommodate the students for the present. The rooms are most attractive in their new decorations and everything promises to be most satisfactory.

Most of the present students will take the one year course which is open to high school graduates or others who have had adequate preparation. Others must take the two year course before awarded the certificate. The ordinary certificate from the institution will allow the holder to teach for three years in the rural schools of the county and arrange themselves to make a transfer to other counties. High school graduates who take the one year course will be allowed to teach five years in the county according to the terms of the new law passed at the last session of the legislature.

The faculty of the school consists of Principal Frank J. Lowth, L. Johnson of Elkhorn, and Mrs. Georgia Hyde, who will have charge of music, drawing and construction work.

AWARD ARCHIE REID FIRST IN BARGAINS

Committee Gives Above Firm First In Best Bargain Page of Last Tuesday's Gazette.

After a careful investigation of all of the best bargains from the forty-five stores represented on the bargain page of the Gazette last week, the committee of three ladies of the Woman's Relief Corp awarded the first place to the bargain offered by Archie Reid and company. The bargain, which the ladies gave first place was the offer of genuine Scotch linen, worth $1.50 per yard, for $1.00 per yard.

The committee sifted the matter down and went over the field very carefully and the decision was reached only after the most thorough deliberation. The award was made on the ground that it was a line of goods that would appeal to the most number of people and at the same time was put up for that one day at a money saving sacrifice price.

Last week's page was especially abundant in good bargains and the task of the committee of picking out the one best bargain from all of the best bargains was very difficult. The best bargain page tonight is equal to the one of last week and tomorrow's, of the stores that are represented thereon will be visited by a committee of ladies from the J. B. church.

Old Roman Pottery.

While workmen were excavating about ten feet below the surface for the foundation of a new wall in a London street the other day they came upon some pieces of pottery, which the foreman, who has had experience of similar finds, immediately recognized as of the Roman period. The pieces were part of a brown basin, beautifully decorated with embossed work and highly glazed, and upon the earth being removed the pieces, polished up as though they had just been taken from the pottery. There were some half dozen heads of urns, a bull's horn, some handles of urns, and a large Roman tile.—London Mail.

JAMES FUREY FOUND DEAD AT HIS HOME ON WASHINGTON ST.

Dead Body, Which Had Started To Decompose, Found By Brother-in-Law This Morning.—Funeral This Afternoon.

At half past four o'clock this afternoon, funeral services for the late James Furey, whose dead body was found in bed at his home at 402 South Washington street this morning, were held and the remains were laid to rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery. Dean E. E. Kelly officiated at the services at this place.

Furey's body was discovered this morning about eight o'clock by his brother-in-law, Thomas Radigan, who resides next door to the house where Furey had lived alone since the death of his mother, last year. Homorrhage of the stomach was the cause of death, according to Dr. H. W. Edden. Mr. Radigan immediately notified the authorities and District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie, Sheriff Ransom, Dr. Edden went to the house. Life had apparently been extinct for four or five days as the body was beginning to decompose. For this reason immediate burial was necessary. The remains were badly bloated and blood clotted on his face, where he had died at the nose and mouth.

Up until the time he inherited a sum of money, Furey was a hard-working laborer, but of late allowed his intemperate habits to govern him, which is believed to have been indirectly responsible for his untimely death. He was last seen Thursday night by Mr. Radigan. His protracted absence caused his relatives worry and the investigation was made.

Mr. Furey was forty-one years of age, born in this city on April 9, 1870. A sister, Mrs. Anna Radigan, is the only surviving member of the family.

LOUIS KELLER TO PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE OF MURDER

Announced His Intentions Today to District Attorney Dunwiddie And Arrangements Will Be Made Later.

Louis Keller, who has been held in the county jail since June 22, charged with the murder of Mrs. Johanna Hlasko on the evening of Wednesday, June 21, has decided to plead guilty before Judge Grimm in the circuit court. He announced this as his intention today after a conference with District Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie.

Keller has come to the decision that this would be the better course to pursue after due thought on the matter unpermeated by his attorneys. He expressed to District Attorney Dunwiddie, that he was an old man and that any sentence imposed would be a life sentence. As this was the case he felt that he would rather have the sentence read for a term of years than for life.

Keller will be eighty years old in September and while he is in good health at the present time, he feels sure that his time is short. More than anything else he dislikes the thought of a life sentence and desired to have it rather for a term of years. It will be arranged for him to enter his plea before Judge Grimm at an early date.

He Deserves Compassion.

"Your case would have been much stronger," said the lawyer whom Mr. Murphy had engaged to defend him, "if you had acted only on the defensive. But you struck first, it seems. If you had let him strike first, you would have had the law on your side." "And what good would it do to have the law on my side," answered Mr. Murphy, "after I was dead? SORROWING WOMAN DRINKS CARBOLIC ACID TO END LIFE

Mrs. Rose Hubbard, residing near Evansville, Grieving Over Husband's Death, Took Her Own Life Yesterday Morning.

Evansville, Aug. 28.—Dependent with grief over the death of her husband who died about four months ago, Mrs. Rose Hubbard, widow of Ephraim Hubbard, residing on the Union road, two miles out of Evansville, drank carbolic acid to end her sorrow and trouble yesterday morning.

She was found by her adopted son, Samuel Shaver, who lives with her, about seven o'clock Sunday morning. He was led to her room by the smell of carbolic acid and he found her in bed, ghastly white, her life fluttering away, and the bottle which had contained the poisonous liquid was on the rug by the bedside. Medical aid was summoned as soon as possible, but she had passed away before a doctor could arrive.

Mrs. Hubbard was 52 years of age. Grief over the death of her husband which occurred about four months ago, had led to brooding and was followed by a nervous breakdown. The action is given as the cause for the action Sunday morning. Her health also had been rather poor for the past several years and combined with her sorrow made the burden too heavy for her to stand.

Mrs. Hubbard was born in Virgil, Ill. in 1859. Twenty-three years ago she came to Wisconsin and lived with her aunt, Mrs. Wood, at the Central House, Evansville. Two years later she was married to Mr. Hubbard and they removed to the farm in the town of Union, two miles out of Evansville, and has made that place her home since that time.

Besides her adopted son, the deceased leaves two sisters and three brothers: Mrs. S. M. Brown of St. Charles, Ill.; Mrs. Grace Solomon, Burlington, Ill.; W. W. Mann of St. Charles; J. J. Mann of Foley, Ala.; and W. D. Mann of Panama.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home, Rev. D. Q. Grubill officiating.

HIS APPETITE.

This is a capacious subject, wide and deep and long. A boy, when asked if he could name the three graces, said, "Yes; breakfast, dinner and supper."

He eats because he has an appetite; he has an appetite because he has to have food; he has to have food because he has a body to build, and in building it entirely out of food—solid and liquid foods. He has to build a house in which his growing soul can have plenty of room, which will also be the machine for accomplishing his mission in the world—all of it built out of food. He is also accumulating reserves with which to meet the drafts that life's duties and exigencies will make on him.

It must also be said that the food supply is partially used up in his activities. That is the way his body assimilates the material, and it takes food to keep him going. His first six years are his most active time, and he does not slow up much till he is 16. At 16 his brain is fully grown, though his mind is not, and his heaviest eating is just as he is finishing the brain structure. So we can say that the two reasons for his great consumption of food supplies are his constant activities and his building enterprises—fuel for himself and material for his building.

That appetite of his, unless it is tampered with, is one of the most intelligent of all the faculties with which he works, and helps him solve some vital and far-reaching problems. His judgment will help some when it learns some things. But the appetite is looking after his interests all the time, desiring and discriminating and appropriating and discerning. For the building he is erecting and the machine he is constructing out of his food, requires three things—a great variety of material, the best quality and great quantities. In his body are such elements as lime and phosphorus and carbon and hydrogen and nitrogen and others. They all come to him in his food and are built into his body. They must be in the right proportion, too. If he gets too much lime, he will be too bony. Too much phosphorus will turn him into a will of the whip.

No boy knows the proportion in which he needs them at a given time and no man can teach him. There is where his appetite comes in and saves the day. To keep him from neglecting to eat, nature keeps him hungry all the time; and to keep him from overstocking himself with any one chemical element, she gives him the appetite to desire for what he needs, whether he knows what it is or not. Later his judgment gives some assistance. Of course, if his appetite is misdirected, it loses its unerring skill.

In this building scheme his parents are usually the superintendents of construction, while he is contractor and builder. By and by he takes the whole thing into his own hands.

Is he equal to the task of providing the material in sufficient variety and quantity and quality? He is apt to get enough, if it is in reach. And there is where responsibility rests on somebody. If anyone is to be denied the required food, it must be the grown person, who has not the boy's building projects, and not the boy, whose structure is now going up and must not be interfered with. Singular about these good women who gave the church supper, at which two oysters held a conversation, as reported by the ambitious professor who has been trying to learn the language of the monkey. Asked the little oyster, "Where are we?" Responded the big oyster, "We are at a church supper." "In that case," said the little oyster, "what did they want with both of us?" No boys were expected there.

And, if his appetite does not become perverted, it will desire what he needs at a particular time. If it remains unperverted, mind you, he will need help from those who know what will injure him, till he acquires a sufficient stock of knowledge and experience to protect himself. It is definitely known that liquor and tobacco always impair the functions of the appetite. The judges of our juvenile courts say that the cigarette fiend cannot be aroused to anything better.

Against these perversions he is not well protected. It looks big to smoke and chew and that appeals to his abnormal vanity. It makes him look like an older person and that appeals to his passion for imitating older boys. "You remember how you learned to 'chew tobacco and spit' when a big boy from the city used to loaf at the saw mill with you smaller boys and swaggers and cuss and chew. As well poison the milk and meat and canned goods as to pervert the powers by which the food is judged and selected.

But the most serious aspect of it is that his food has so much to do with his mind and character. Chemical changes in his body are paralleled by changes in his emotions. The heart of the soul responds to the physical heartbeats. At the time when the physical hunger is greatest, his mind and heart hunger for most reckless and heartless food, his inner being absorbs truth and love and all the elements of character. Character takes tone and cast from his physical home. Food and physical surroundings get built into the inner being.

Telephone Voice.

The voice heard over the telephone is a mechanical reproduction of the original voice and differs from that of a speaking tube or megaphone, where the sound waves produced by the speaker at one end are transmitted directly to the other end. In the telephone the diaphragm of the transmitter is caused to vibrate by the sound waves produced by some one talking into the transmitter mouthpiece. This diaphragm is connected with a small receptacle having a flexible front and partially filled with granular carbon. This carbon offers resistance to electric current in proportion to the mechanical pressure brought upon it. The diaphragm, therefore, in vibrating produces a varying pressure against the carbon. The carbon is included in an electric circuit, so that the variation in its resistance will vary the current strength in the circuit.

The Fuel Supply Needs Attention Only Three Times Each Day

The makers of Cole's Hot Blast Heater guarantee this stove to hold fire with soft coal 36 hours without attention. Your old stove and imitation stoves leak air and waste fuel because they are not air-tight, because they have putty joints.

Cole's Original Hot Blast Heater

—by means of the patented Hot Blast Draft and other patented features which make it tight, doing away with the use of stove putty—requires less attention than any other heater made.

All fuel—Soft Coal, Hard Coal, Lignite, Wood or Corn Cobs—contains a large amount of gas. Fully one-half of the heating power (carbon) in soft coal is gas. This is the part of the fuel this wonderful heater saves, by burning it with the Top Hot Blast Draft. This makes Cole's Hot Blast Heater the most satisfactory, the most economical, the most convenient heater you can buy. Imitations and other styles of stoves allow this gas-half of the coal to pass up the chimney with the smoke, unburned.

Thousands of these stoves are in use and the sale continues to increase year after year.

This heater will give you more comfort than you ever thought possible by using any kind of a stove which uses soft coal for fuel.

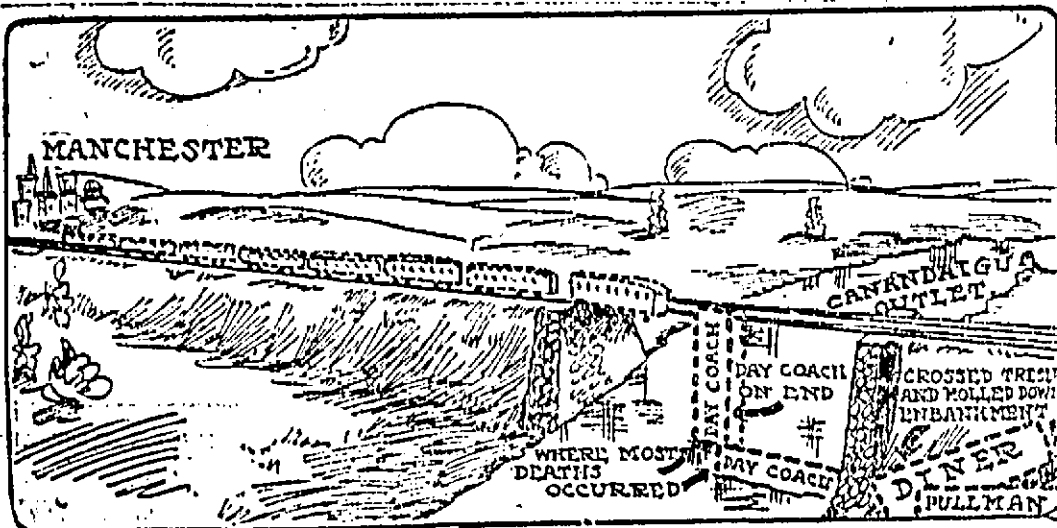

Right now is the time to decide and select the size you should have. Come in and see complete line of styles and sizes.

WHERE 80 PEOPLE MET DEATH.
Diagram of the Manchester wreck on the Lehigh Valley and a map showing the exact location of the wreck.

Manchester, New York.—The wreck of the G. A. R. train of 14 coaches and 2 engines which was derailed on a trestle here at noon August 25th, was one of the most unusual accidents in railroad history. The 2 engines and 2 day coaches forming the front part of the train were in no way injured and remained on the track as did the last 8 coaches. The middle section consisting of a Pullman, diner and two day coaches were completely demolished, resulting in the death of over 80 people. The diner and Pullman were hauled across the trestle before they left the tracks and rolled down an embankment. The day coach following the diner broke loose from the other cars and left the trestle, hitting the masonry work with terrific force and dropping 10 feet to the bottom of Canandaigua Outlet. The day coach next in the train ran off the embankment and dropped, head foremost to the bottom of the creek with the rear extending above the tracks. In this coach was the greatest mortality as the passengers were piled in a heap of humanity in the fore end of the coach. The Pullman which followed this day coach and in which were many of the G. A. R. veterans returning from the Rochester convention just missed the fate of the four preceding cars by the fortunate breaking of the coupler which held it to the rest of the train.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

Charles Rann Kennedy, author of "The Servant in the House" believes that the number of actors in this country will be greatly decreased during the next few years and that theatrical managers will ultimately discard the star system. Mr. Kennedy argues that plays should be made up of carefully trained and genuinely talented actors. "This plan," he says, "will greatly increase the salary level, since managers will have to pay as much for 'bottoms' for example, as is now paid to actors with long 'leading parts.' But the increased cost will be offset by savings in other respects. How much better it will be to have one stage picture and let all action occur there than to lavish one's fortune on a doubtful stage venture with elaborate settings. If a play of the new type is not a success and will suffer except the dramatist who produces faulty work? There will be no store-house burghers in the future. The only stagehouse will be a bookshelf whence unavailable manuscripts will be allowed to rest in peace."

"The Servant in the House" will be presented at the Myers Theatre Monday, Sept. 4, matinee and evening.

HAIL BREAKS GLASS IN COACH WINDOWS

Twenty-one Windows in Train Broken by Hail Stones Near Latham Park Last Night. Passengers and Crew Showered With Broken Glass.

Passengers and crew on train number 120 on the L. and S. W. division of the C. M. & St. P., which is due here between eight and nine P. M., had a novel experience of having showers of broken glass thrown upon them last night when a severe hail storm in the vicinity of Latham Park broke 21 windows in the train and all the glass in one side of the cab. Local transportation men claim that they never before heard of such a general smashing of the coach windows in a train as the result of a hailstorm. Twelve windows in the smoker and nine in the ladies' coach were smashed into bits and the shower of hail and rain drove the passengers to shelter on the opposite side of the car. The rain that accompanied the hail deluged the coaches and made the last lap of the journey very unpleasant for passengers and the engine crew.

The rain which visited this city last evening was evidently a part of the same storm but fortunately for the farmers the hail did not come to this section. Between Rockford and Davis Junction great damage was done to growing crops and the farmers feel that it would have been better to endure the inconvenience caused by drought in preference to the destruction done by the hail.

We are publishing this extraordinary page of specials

This paper has been studying for some time past the relative importance, interest and appeal the "advertising" of a modern paper should bear to the other "news" set forth in its columns.

(The result is staggering to the reporter and editorial as well.)

It has come to us that, what interests the world most today and has most interested them since the world began, is summed up in—

WHAT TO EAT—WHAT TO WEAR—WHAT TO HAVE IN THE HOME—HOW TO BEST SPEND MONEY TO PROMOTE THE MOST PLEASURE AND HAPPINESS AND COMFORT.

Compared with these great points which vitally concern humanity, the lesser happenings of life are but incidents.

And the person best qualified to interest the people of this city in these matters of most moment are by all means the merchants—the men who are in touch with the world's markets—who know what is being done in the new discoveries and origination of merchandise and food stuffs, to raise standards of living or change modes and styles.

Do the people of this city really appreciate this great truth? Do the merchants appreciate it themselves, is a question this paper has been asking itself and also the question—

HOW CAN THIS PAPER HELP bring a closer confidence and sense of mutual understanding and benefit between advertiser and the public?

In answer to this question THIS PAPER HAS SET ASIDE

THIS SPACE for one day each week and has asked the merchants of this city to contribute

(What in their opinion will be their (one) most appealing bargain.)

Moreover, we mean to devote this space one day each week to announcing these "best" bargains. We also mean to protect our merchants and our readers in the sincerity of all offerings, and so we will appoint a competent shopping committee to each week inspect all "best" bargain offerings and decide which is the ONE BEST BARGAIN OF ALL the decision of the committee to be published in the ad of the week following the insertion of the "best" bargains.

45 Merchants Have Responded— some with price cuts, some with "new arrivals," some with style novelties, some with unique originations, some with offerings possessing more than ordinary appeal to eye, palate, or ear.

This Ad is Bound to Contain many things to interest and appeal to every reader of this paper—many needed items at a big saving, many wanted things, many new suggestions; and so, even if you haven't a need, desire or wish unfulfilled at the present time, the reading of this ad and the succeeding ads will be well worth your while in developing your discernment, just for the interest and satisfaction of determining in advance in your own mind the "bargain" which the committee will select as "best," your faculty for picking out real bargains when you see them and also because these announcements from every point of view are bound to make

The most interesting reading of any page in today's paper

with their offer of genuine $1.50 per yard Scotch linen at $1.00 per yard were awarded the honor of "Best Bargain" last week—the linen being found as advertised, a "pure, unadulterated bargain."

Was this the bargain you decided was best last week?

Did you read and respond to that bargain page—you certainly missed the most interesting reading in the paper if you happened to overlook it—But here is another—just as brimful of interest to you—read every special—perhaps the very item you need most is set forth here the most extraordinary offering on the page.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

"And this our life, exempt from public haunt,
Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks,
Sermons in stones, and good in everything."

I THOUGHT of the exiled Duke the other day when I found a lesson in a piece of toast.

It was at a Sunday night supper at a friend's home. In the absence of her maid she had made the toast herself and it was so absolutely different from ordinary toast that every one of the guests spoke of it. You see the point was this. The toast wasn't merely passable. It was JUST RIGHT. It was made over just the right kind of fire. It was browned just enough. The butter was put on at just the right moment and in just the right quantity.

Now thinking of the matter casually, you may be inclined to say that toast is toast, and doesn't vary very widely, but really, if you had eaten this toast I feel convinced you would admit that there was as much difference between it and the common or garden variety of lukewarm, half-browned-on-the-outside, half-cooked-on-the-inside toast, as there is between a landscape attempted by a student in his first year of art school and the same landscape painted by a master.

It seems to me that that toast was a work of art because it was a product of the same passion for perfection that stands behind all great artistic expressions.

And the lesson, of course, is that any everyday task, the making of a dress, the darning of stockings, the cleaning of silver, the keeping of books, may also be a work of art if the doer of it be only inspired with that passion for perfection.

Between work poorly done and work well done, is a long road. It slopes gently upwards and many people travel along it.

Between work well done and work absolutely right is a shorter road, but oh, very steep and rough, and few people ever enter upon it.

But those few who do take in their hands the staff of a passion for perfection and climb this steep and thorny road find many splendid things on the mountain tops to which it leads.

For the man who works for money there is gold and success and sometimes fame.

For the woman who works for love there is soul satisfaction. All things worth climbing for, I think. Don't you?

The KITCHEN GABINET

There are plenty good fish in the sea, that never were caught.

It is not so much what a woman has that makes her happy, as it is what she does not want.

DAINTY DISHES OF FISH.

Baked Codfish.—Cover one cupful of shredded salt codfish with boiling water and set aside. Beat together two cupfuls of cold mashed potatoes, two cupfuls of milk, two eggs beaten and half a cup of melted butter. Season with pepper. Drain the codfish, mix with the potato, put into a buttered baking dish and bake half an hour. Half this recipe is sufficient for a small family.

Cuban Codfish.—Chop an onion fine and fry light brown in butter. Add a cupful of canned tomatoes and a cup of fresh ground codfish. Cook ten minutes, stirring constantly. Serve on buttered toast.

Line a baking dish with seasoned mashed potatoes, fill with creamed codfish, and cover with the potato. Bake and serve in slices.

Fish à la Vinaigrette.—Use any cold fish that has been baked or boiled, free from skin, fat and bone, and pile in the center of a platter. Make a ring of sliced hard-cooked eggs around the base of the fish.

Make a sauce of three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one tablespoonful of vinegar, a pinch of salt, a dash of paprika and a tablespoonful of chopped pickles. Pour over the fish and garnish with lemon and parsley.

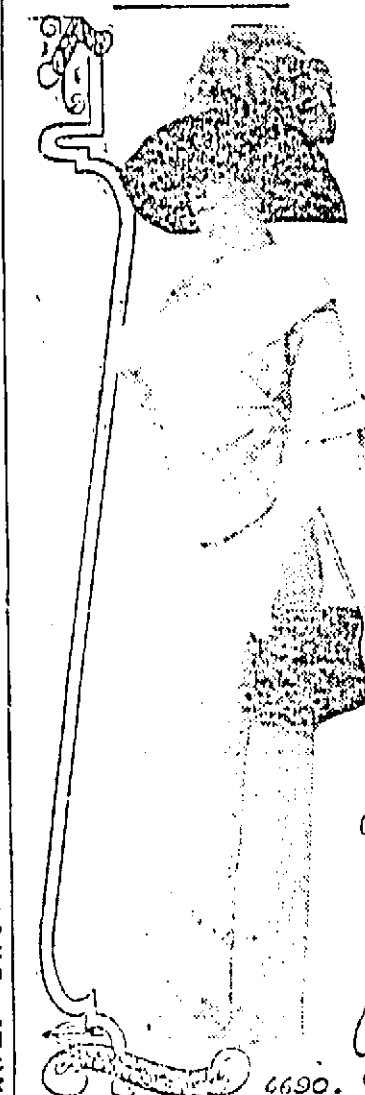

Jellied Fish.—Soak a package of gelatin in cold water to cover, then add enough more water to make a cupful and dissolve by gentle heat until the liquid is transparent. Have ready four cupfuls of flaked, cooked fish, stir until it begins to thicken. Pack into an earthen jar or mold that has been rinsed with cold water, and set away to harden.

Salmon Croquettes.—Mix a cupful of canned salmon with an equal quantity of cold mashed potatoes. Bind with beaten egg or very thick cream sauce. Shape into croquettes, dip in egg and fry in a wire basket in deep fat.

A Real Improvement.
"How do you like your new house?"
"Great! There's a place in it for me to hang my razor strap."

Faith, Hope and Charity.
Take three strong points in your religion to heart—the doctrinal rules do not matter so much if you hold fast to these—namely, faith, hope and charity. Whatever your fallings and backslidings, if you have faith and hope that right will win and charity toward other sinners, you will see your way clear to a better future.

RETICULES MORE LUXURIOUS THAN EVER.

The fad for reticules still continues and the new bags of this sort are remarkably handsome. East Indian cotton and embroideries being used with striking effect. One style of bag shows the "tree of life" embroidered with gold and silver threads on a rich green ground; another shows a conventionalized peacock pattern done with beads and colored silks. All reticules have very long cord handles which may be looped over the shoulder or wrist, or the bag may be carried in the hand with the long cords falling gracefully over the skirt.

CHRYSAEUM MOTIF FOR SHIRTWAISTS, SCARVES AND CENTERPIECES.

The Chrysaemum design is always a popular one, as it is a most effective decoration and easy to embroider. This motif is suitable for shirtwaists, centerpieces and scarves. It may be done in the solid embroidery, with the stems in the outline stitch, or in the shadow work, which consists of a close forgetting or cross-stitch, done on the wrong side of sheer material. The stems are worked in the outline stitch also on the wrong side. Use mercerized cotton No. 20.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

CHANGING THE DIET.

In adopting a new diet, the law of gradual change applies. The manner of effecting the change, in detail, should be determined by age, temperament, and other particulars. The longer the habit has been established the more gradual should be the change. A person of nervous temperament should change more slowly than a phlegmatic person of iron will.

Occasionally after one has become established in the better way and being fully convinced that the change has proved beneficial, an overwhelming desire will take possession of one to return, temporarily, to the old way. I believe it is best, in such cases, to yield for one meal, or even for a day or two. Coffee does not become a deadly poison the day one forswears it. One must be careful, however, lest "the last state become worse than the first."

Our friends, the enemy, are the greatest hindrance to improvement in diet. The fear of being called a "food crank" deters many from making a change which they know would greatly improve their health and success generally, although "food cranks" are now happily becoming so numerous that there is ample company.

Lightning Strikes a Pen.
A clerk in a Liverpool (Eng.) office was sitting at his desk during a recent thunderstorm, when what he describes as a ball of flame struck the pen in his hand, producing a startling report. Curiously enough, the pen was not damaged, nor did the clerk himself suffer any injury.

SHE HAD CONSTANT PAIN

Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dewittville, N.Y.—"Before I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered nearly all the time with headaches, backaches, and bearing down pains, and had a continuous pain in my left side. It made me sick if I tried to walk much, and my back was so weak that I was obliged to wear braces all the time. But now I do not have any of these troubles. I have a fine strong baby daughter now, which I did not have before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. A. A. GILES, Route 41, Dewittville, N.Y.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

AN EMPIRE EVENING GOWN.

A dainty effect in white almon-de-ye with corsage and panel of pearl embroidery and velvet straps. This new creation is one of Paris' famous modistes and has already won popularity not only in France but in England, and it is predicted that it will be worn in America this coming season.

The Angelus.
This picture was painted by Malay. It contains a man and a church steeple. The man and the woman are very poor, they have been digging potatoes because they need them to live on. The potatoes look very small. Just at sunset they hear a bell ring. It is the Angelus, it means they must pray. So they bow their heads and pray for bigger potatoes.—Lippincott's.

The Rascal's Deed.
There was once a man arrested on suspicion of a generally fraudulent life. On him was found a map of England, and certain of the towns were marked with the initials T. W. K. The detectives who traced his career of deception from town to town took quite a long time to discover that those letters were a personal warning, and stood for "Too Well Known."

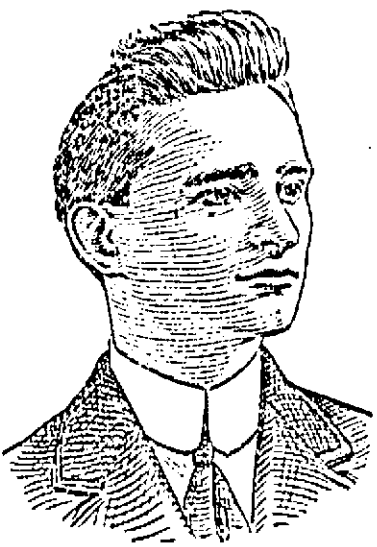

The Blazers of New Paths.
Hats off to the daring souls who scorn to walk in the old ruts, who carve out new paths for themselves and leave them broad and open for others to follow in their footsteps. These are the ones who have the right kind of conceit, the conceit which is appreciated and brings its own reward.

Thought for Today

By MRS. ROBERT N. LAPOLETTE

READ THE NEWSPAPERS.

A MAN once said to me, "I wish my wife would read something in the newspapers besides the woman's page." He did not realize what his wish disclosed, but I did. He was interested in the world's events; his wife was not. The woman who reads only the woman's page is like the man who reads only the sporting news; if one is truly feminine, the other is truly masculine. She is, maybe, a lovable woman; he is a likeable fellow, but neither can long be intellectually companionable to those who like to talk about things not discussed on their special pages.

It looks good to me to see a woman buy a paper for her own self and proceed to read it, as a man does—or ought—because she wants to know what has happened. Such a woman has resources, something to think about, something to talk about in common, not with a few people only, but with many people.

Somewhere in today's daily paper, yesterday's history is recorded. The facts may be colored, but if we want to know the truth we can learn to read wisely. We should think for ourselves. It gives good mental training.

The reading of the paper each day should not take long. It is a great help if we learn to concentrate on the one or two paragraphs that usually contain the gist of each news story.

There are women who regard the reading of newspapers as worse than time wasted, because of their objectionable features. Perhaps if women read them more, they would improve; the comic sheet for one thing, and be less bulky for another.

The Candid Girl

by Barbara Boyd

Suggests That a Baby's Opinions of Us Would Be Interesting.

W OULDN'T it be fun," said the Candid Girl, "to know just what a baby thinks of us."

"He doesn't think at all," chorused the married women. "That shows how much you know."

"I'm not so sure he doesn't think," replied the Candid Girl. "I've had many a baby look at me with such serious, earnest eyes that he seemed to be saying, 'I could tell you a lot, if I could only talk!' I certainly would like to know what he would say. It would be so unsophisticated, so absolutely unaffected by the world's point of view."

"But don't psychologists or people who study brains and things say that a baby is only a little animal?" asked one.

The other women looked indignant. The Candid Girl replied briskly, "Maybe. But how do they know? If you think back as far as you can think about yourself, did you ever seem to be any less 'You,' than you are now? Your individuality was there full size. You only had less experiences than you have now. I think children understand a lot more than we give them credit for. When we think we are fooling them, we are only fooling ourselves. They appear not to understand because they are unfamiliar with their instrument of expression, that is all."

"Goodness!" exclaimed the women. "You think, then, if a baby could talk fluently, he could tell us a lot."

"Yes. And most interesting stuff too. I think he would put some of the things we do and say in quite a new light to us."

"For instance," went on the Candid Girl, "I think he would express some surprise at the number of kisses we shower upon him. Kissing must seem a strange performance to a baby, especially when things that might minister to his comfort are left undone, though he is kissed and hugged inordinately."

"I think he would tell us, too, that he has no specific desire to cry, that the word 'naughty' has no meaning to him, and that there is always a cause for his crying, and that the best way to stop it is to find out the cause and remove it. And that if the cause is a certain feeling of comfort that ensues when he is held a certain way, and he expresses a desire for this sensation by loud and long wails, the fault is not his, but the one's who taught him to like the sensation. It is not fair to be made to like being held or walked with or rocked, and then be punished for expressing this liking. To the mind not yet accustomed to feminine reasoning, this must seem a peculiar proceeding."

"I think, too, he would have a lot to say on the subject of clothes, especially in summertime. Buttons and safety pins and petticoats and lace frills must seem astounding to the infant mind. He does not yet know how necessary it is to impress the world through the medium of clothes."

"I certainly would like to get a six months' old baby off by himself," concluded the Candid Girl "and have the power of speech suddenly given him. I think his observations of life for those six months would be interesting. I think he would tell us more helpful truths about ourselves than we get from the pulpit."

"It would be interesting," agreed the other women musingly.

Just Like a Trust.

"It looks like a blossom trust," said Spring, "for there are who fences around the finest peach and plum trees. But it isn't my fault. I'd trim all the women's hats for 'em free if I had a chance!"—Frank L. Stanton.

The Poor Widow.

A young woman in New York eloped with a gentleman and was greatly surprised to find that she had become the stepmother of nine children by that name. Therefore, she deserted her new husband. Is there no romance possible for a widow with children?

DR. SAMUEL PLANTZ IN STRONG ADDRESS

PRESIDENT OF LAWRENCE COL-LEGE OCCUPIED METHODIST
PULPIT LAST EVENING.

POWER OF GOD'S LOVE

Was Emphasized in All Its Important Points—Was Strong and Comprehensive Sermon.

Speaker on the old familiar text, John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that whosoever believed in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life," Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of Lawrence College at Appleton, delivered a strong address on the power and inclusiveness of God's love.

"The etymology of the old Greek word for man," the speaker said in part, "meant one who looks upward. And it accurately characterizes the qualities of men in all their stages of development. Wherever you find man you will find him looking after God. Cicero and other early philosophers realized this and embodied their teachings in the phrase, 'God is the destiny of every life.'"

"But the thought of God and His influence on our lives depends on our conception of Him. In order to have a high and lofty conception of God it is necessary to have a high and lofty experience. The idea of God is clearly set forth in the Old Testament in which His righteousness and holiness is emphasized. The deeper and personal side of God was not known until it was clearly revealed in Christ as is shown in our text.

"The nature of God is not simply justice, righteousness and holiness, but love. And this love is universal; it extends to all continents, and peoples and races; it includes everything and everybody. Man's love is possessive of a love for localities. Dante and Spenser loved their Florence, the prophet in Babylonian captivity longed for Jerusalem the golden, Knox deeply loved Scotland, and all men love their native land. But the love of God is broader than the love of race. With Him there is neither Syrian nor barbarian, neither bond nor free, but the world is His field. When Christ comprehended His disciples to go forth, He sent them, not to Hebrew or Greek, but to all the world. It is not a partial or provincial affection, but it is for the entire human race. If it were limited it would not be infinite.

"Yet again and again this conception of God has been obscured and doctrines have been proposed regarding the universality of the love of God. God has not one attitude toward us; He is not a being whose nature is complete and harmonious as a unit within itself. Sometimes we have the belief advanced that He is wrathful and revengeful, and that His mercy and love may be reached only through Christ. The spontaneity of His love is lost sight of. But it is a mistaken idea, for the love of God is universal and the Trinity cannot be cut of harmony with itself. God is in Christ and they seek together the salvation of men.

"Another conception is the old error handed down through Augustine and Calvin even to the present, that some are elected to salvation and others are elected to condemnation. It obscures the true nature of God's love.

"God's love is a revealing love. And God in Christ revealed His love in human action and His whole life was an expression of this love of God for men. We may see the beauty of the world and are impressed with the love of God for us, but when we stand in the darkness of sorrow and agony of the garden and hear the groans of suffering of our Christ, no man can deny the expression of God's love.

"That the love of God is not only universal and revealing, it is revealing. It identifies subject and object; the natural act of love can't be selfish and indifferent. It must reach out to that to which it is attached, and God suffers because it is natural for him to suffer with those to whom he is related. Sometimes it is said that suffering is a substitution for punishment. But the nature of human being is for them to suffer with those with whom they are related and interested regardless of their faults.

"The love of God is also a self-sacrificing love. It is something more than human passion and something more than sympathy, and unselfishness, but it is morally strong. There is a distinction between right and wrong which it recognizes. In addition it is a conquering and compelling love as it touches men's hearts and influences their actions. It is a moving love which will compel to certain actions. And since God so loves us that He gave His only begotten Son, what ought we to respond to this wealth and depth of the divine affection?

COUPLE AT CLINTON HAVE BEEN MARRIED FOR SEVENTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Treat, Oldest
Settlers in This Section of State,
Will Celebrate Seventieth
Wedding Day Tomorrow.

[By United Press.]
Clinton, Wis., Aug. 28.—Relatives and friends from all parts of the state today flocked here to attend the seventieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Treat, perhaps the oldest couple in point of married life in Wisconsin.

Mr. Treat, although 91 years of age, is hale and hearty, while his wife, who is 84, even put to shame some of the younger members of the household in welcoming the guests who filled in all day to offer congratulations.

The aged couple enjoy another distinction, being among the oldest settlers in this section of the state. They will be held also.

MR. AND MRS. C. M. TREAT.

were married Aug. 27, 1841, at Rutgers, O., and came to Wisconsin in 1847.

Despite his advanced age Mr. Treat was written in a firm hand the history of his life which in part gives an idea of the conditions surrounding early life in Wisconsin. His autobiography follows in part:

"In the spring of 1837, we came from Ohio and rented a large farm four miles east of Deloit, and the next year, 1838, we were blessed with an immense crop of grain and could sell our wheat for 25 cents a bushel and our corn and oats at ten cents a bushel, provided we could take our pay in store goods, and to sell for cash we were obliged to haul them to Milwaukee or Racine, and we concluded that, in that region, was, for us, unprofitable business. So, in the winter of 1839 we rented a hotel at Belvidere, Ill., where we remained between three and four years, then sold out and went to Janesville, where we remained some three years, then bought us a farm and I resumed my labor as farmer and teacher.

"In the fall of 1862 I was elected a member of the state legislature. After this I served as county superintendent of schools eight and one-fourth years.

"In the fall of 1868 we purchased a lot and built us a dwelling at Clinton, where we now reside and will be most happy to receive our friends whenever convenient for them to call."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Treat have a number of friends in Janesville.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.

(By H. L. RANN.)

The housewife who does a lot of the heavy work around the house which a lazy husband loads onto her ought to beat a few ounces of industry into him with an axe before she starts out right in their married life. If the young wife would reach over and shut a door into the prostrate form of her spouse when he lies on the floor, she would find that the husband who smokes Frank Walker's Delight tobacco in the front parlor and roars around the house clanking "Let the Women Do the Work." If more women would pass around the reverse end of a potato masher as a gentle reminder to their husbands to take their feet off the center table and get busy, this would be a brighter and a better world. We saw a great, hulking husband of six happy weeks come loping into a doctor's office with a face on him like a cross section of beef sausage, resolved in an argument with his wife as to who should fill the wood box, and as a result that pleading receptacle has never been empty since. Moral sanitation and the power of love are all right when you are dealing with a still-legged calf, but the only treatment that counts for anything with an uncooperative husband is to plant a mellow swat in his side with a flat-iron.

We have been asked why some bees sting harder than others. Personally, we could never see any difference. The average male bee, so scientists tell us, has a stinger varying from one eighth to one-quarter of an inch, depending upon the resistance encountered. A well-directed sting on the point of the chin, for instance, is liable to cause more uneasiness on the part of the stinger than one planted on a new shirt cuff. Some bees have a rotary motion in their stinging apparatus, while others use a smooth bore which is about as pleasing as painless dentistry. If you are bound to be stung, choose a bee whose family relations are pleasant or go and bite off a chunk of mining stock.

Schlitz in Brown Bottles

No "Skunk" Taste

That "Skunk" taste sometimes detected in pure beer is the result of exposing it to the light.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives protection against light.

Schlitz is brewed in absolute cleanliness—cooled in filtered air—then it is aged for months, to prevent biliousness, then filtered through white wood pulp—then every bottle is sterilized, and delivered to you in brown bottles, thus protecting Schlitz purity from the brewery to your glass.

If you knew what we know about beer you would say "Schlitz—Schlitz in brown bottles."

Polk County, Minnesota, in the Celebrated Red River Valley, is the Place

If you are looking for a farm home, where you can enjoy all the comforts of modern farm life and, by practical attention to farm duties with success, there is no section of the country offering greater opportunities than Polk County, Minnesota.

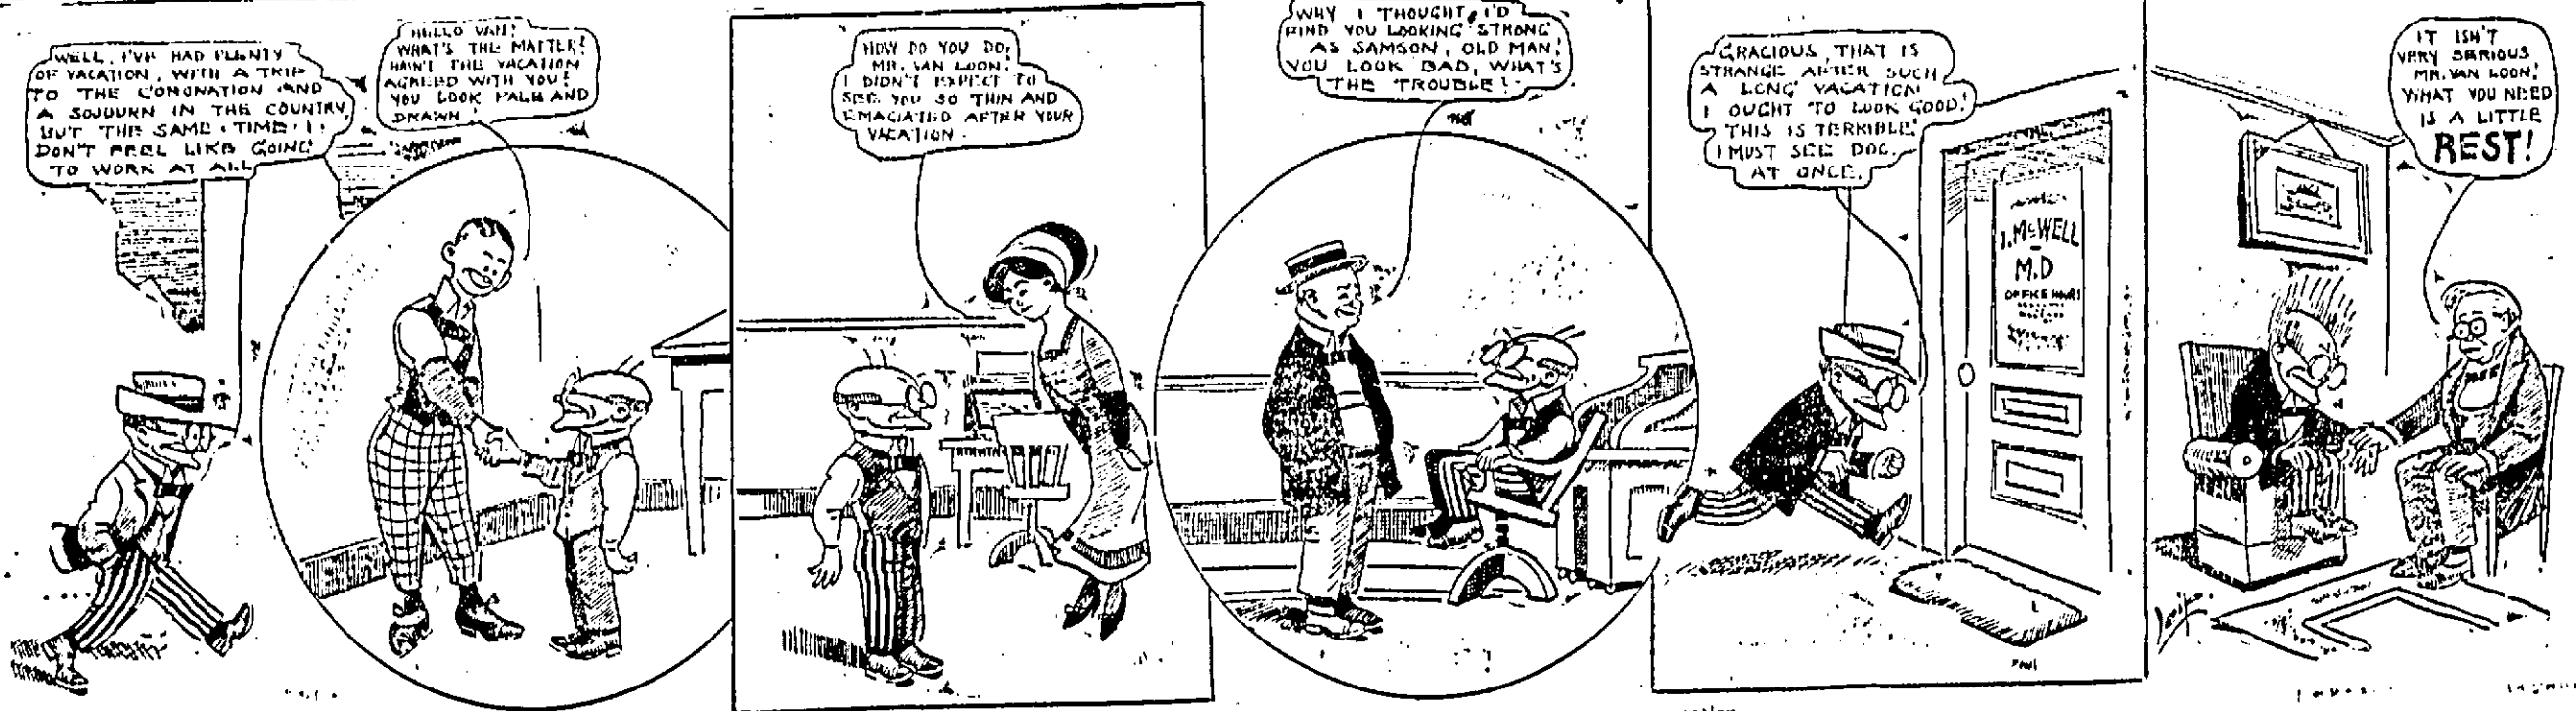

A Polk County farm has the soil, the conveniences, the comforts the facilities and the attractions that will satisfy you, and at the same time the present value of the land, measured by what you will have to pay for it, is out of all proportion to what its possibilities are, and careful investigation and consideration will convince you that no other section holds out so promising opportunities.

The idea has grown in some people's minds that the Red River Valley is low and wet. This is an erroneous impression as such is not the case. The State of Minnesota has put in several large ditches, and the Counties in the Valley, have put in smaller ditches, all to take care of this surface water, which they have in the Spring, owing to the fact that this particular valley is drained by the Red River of the North, which of course, flowing north, does not thaw at the mouth as early as it does at the source, thus causing the water to back up, and in the past, overflow the land.

By having these ditches the water backs up into them, instead of overflowing the land, and thus relieves this country of the land.

Come in and see me, and if after investigating my proposition you find that everything is not just as I represent it to you, I will refund your railroad fare both ways. Is this not a fair offer?

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Well, that's right, Father did have a rather strenuous vacation.

CHATTANOOGA

A FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY BY F. A. MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

And this being, so dazzling to a young girl scarcely twenty, was in her power. Could she not in a word give him over to an honorable death? And could she not by care almost certainly insure his freedom? He was her slave, bound to her far more securely than Alice, her maid, who had been given her by her father. She could order him to crawl on the floor before her, and he would have to do so. She had once seen a woman enter a cage of a lion with only a slender whip in her hand, and the huge beast had obeyed her slightest motion. Mark was her lion, and she felt inclined to give him just one touch of the whip to see what he would do. She stepped into the room and let down the trap.

"Miss Fain," Mark said, "you cannot have any conception of the fever of my gratitude. You stand between me and death—not the death of a soldier, but of a felon. And here," pointing to the breakfast, "you are insisting to my wants with your own hands."

"And yet I told you not to come here."

"I did not understand you so. I am sorry that you regret your kindness," he added, with almost a tremble in his voice.

"I did not say that I regretted it."

"But you reminded me that it is not agreeable to you."

"How can it be? You are a Yankee—a spy—and on a mission to discover the movements of our troops."

"Why, then, do you not give me up?"

"She shrugged her shoulders. 'Can I turn executioner?'"

"I see, I am indebted for my present safety to the fact that you do not care to do an unwomanly act."

"You must draw your own inference."

"But I should like to be grateful. How can I when you tell me that you do all this for me that your white hands may not have a stain upon them?"

"It is not necessary that you should feel grateful."

Mark studied her face for a moment earnestly. Then his manner changed.

"Miss Fain," he said, pointing, "take away the breakfast."

"Why say?" she asked, startled.

"I will not be under any further obligation to one who acts from pride rather than sweet charity. You have saved me from the bonds and from the gallows. Were it not for you I should now be either about to mount the scaffold or have passed by this time into that land where the only human attribute I can imagine as fitted to be there is charity. Whether the danger is now passed from this neighborhood I do not know, but I am going to risk it. I am going down stairs and out from under this roof."

"You will do no such thing!"

"I will!" And he did not place himself between him and the trap he would have carried out his intention.

"Stay where you are!" she said in a voice in which there was something commanding.

"My life belongs to me."

"True," he bowed his head.

"You understand me," she spoke with even more authority than before.

"I own you, I own your life. You are my slave in a stronger sense than my colored girl."

"It is that ownership of human beings, Miss Fain, coming down to you from past generations, that has given you the spirit to tyrannize over me now."

"I tyrannize?"

"There was a surprise that was not feigned. She did not realize what she was doing."

"Yes, never have I been so trodden upon as by you."

"There was a submission in the young soldier's tone that satisfied the imperious girl. She was ready to let the end she had given, but she waited for him to speak again."

"What do you wish me to do?" he

F. A. MITCHEL.

"WHO ARE YOU?" HE ASKED OF SOUT, NOT UNKINDLY.

corner. The jailer went to it, and by means of the candle saw what he supposed to be the prisoner.

"Yank," he said, "air y' dead?"

No answer.

He took hold of the figure's shoulder and shook it.

"Still no reply."

Turning Sout over he at once recognized the face of the "maulie girl."

In an instant he saw through the ruse that had been practiced. Without stopping to interrogate her, he rushed from the room past the sentinel at the door and out to the guardhouse.

There he gave the alarm, and in a moment the whole guard was in motion.

Sout hoped that the sentinel at the door would join in the chase, in which event she intended to go to Jakey's room, get him out and attempt to escape. But the soldier only went as far as the door at the head of the long staircase. Then, remembering that he would doubtless be punished for letting one prisoner escape, and that there were several negroes in the "black hole" for him to guard, he went no further.

In five minutes Sout heard the barking of hounds without.

No word was sent to headquarters regarding Mark's escape till the hounds had followed the sent to the river and there lost it. Then one of the guards was sent in to report the whole affair. Being an intelligent man, he was obliged to walk, which took time. Cavalry was the only arm of the service capable of following the escaped man with a chance of success, and cavalry must be ferried across the river or ordered from Dallas, on the other side, ten miles above. The latter course was chosen, and two squadrons were directed to proceed at once, the one to throw a chain guard across the neck of Moccasin point, the other to scout the river bank for a distance of several miles below. Had there been any cavalry nearer, Mark would have had a very slender chance to get away. As it was, he barely escaped one of the squadrons.

About noon the provost marshal sent for Sout and Jakey with a view to getting from them whatever he might know concerning Mark's identity and his mission.

"Who are you?" he asked of Sout not unkindly.

"Missouri Shack."

"Where do you live?"

"In the Anderson road, not far from Jasper."

"And this boy?"

"He's my brother."

"When did you come from home?"

"Three days ago."

"What brought you, or how did you know that the prisoner was here and in jail?"

"Jakey sent me word."

"How?"

"He sent me a silk handkerchief what I gave to her."

"How did you send it, boy?"

"Niggers."

"Can."

"Well, you two are pretty young to be engaged in such mischief."

The officer looked at them with interest and vexation mingled.

"What do you think I ought to do with you?"

"Rocken y' might gimme back my gun," said Jakey.

The officer could not repress a smile.

"What gun?"

"The one yer tuk tother day."

"Go and get the boy's gun, orderly," he said to a soldier on duty at the door.

The gun was not to be found then, but was recovered later, and Jakey was happy in receiving it.

"Do you know what you've been doing?" the officer resumed, addressing Sout.

"You've helped a spy to escape who will doubtless carry information to the enemies of your country."

Sout made no reply. She stood looking at the officer with her big black eyes. Fortunately for her, he had a daughter about her age.

Meanwhile some Tennesseans who had been sent for, and they came in to have a look at the prisoners. Several of them recognized both Sout and Jakey, and told the marshal that they were what they pretended.

This and their youth, together with the fact that the provost marshal was not a harsh man, saved them from punishment.

The officers at headquarters were too busy to meddle with such a case. The provost marshal's communication was returned with the following indorsement:

Respectfully referred back to the provost marshal with authority to do with these prisoners as he thinks for the best interests of the service. The spy having escaped, it does not appear there is any reason to hold them.

The brother and sister were brought in again to hear what was to be their fate. Sout was aware of the enormity of her offense and expected a severe punishment. She had determined to beg the officer to send Jakey back to his parents, then he might punish her as he liked.

"Suppose I let you and your little brother go home," said the marshal.

"Will you go there and keep out of my interference in matters that concern the Confederacy hereafter?"

"I'll go home," said Sout.

"Well, I reckon you'd better go," replied the officer. Then to the guard:

"Send the corporal here."

"Take these children," he said to that person when he arrived, "to the other side of the river and turn them adrift, and see that they don't get back here."

Sout's heart jumped into her throat for joy. Turning her expressive eyes on the officer, she said, "Thank you."

"Mr. Osaffer," said Jakey, "I thank y' for givin' me back my gun."

A smile broke over the faces of those present.

The next day the brother and sister arrived at home, and great was the rejoicing in the Shack family.

CHAPTER XI.
A SOUTH CAROLINA GEOLOGIST.

WHEN the trap door of the attic had closed over Laura Fain after her interview with Mark he stood for a few minutes pondering on her strange treatment of him. Then he turned to the breakfast. He had eaten nothing since the evening before and the sight of the greater part of a fried chicken did not seem to him to be especially grateful.

Soon after he had finished his breakfast a hand was extended through the trap, a pitcher of water and toilet articles were left and the dishes taken. At noon a meal was handed in by the same fair hand.

Though but two meals had been thus left, Laura began to perceive that she could not thus feed her charge without soon being discovered. When she took Mark's dinner to him she entered the attic and had him close the trap after her.

"It will not do for you to stay here much longer," she said. "My mother has already become suspicious that I have something on my mind, and I fear being detected carrying these meals. I dare not tell her all, and I dare not risk her discovering that you are here."

"I will go tonight."

"It will be sure capture for you to go. The negroes tell me that the country people are all out looking for the spy."

"I can't stay here and compromise you."

"I have a plan. This evening I will watch for an opportunity for you to go down stairs. You can introduce yourself as a guest, and though you will be every minute in danger you will be safer than here."

"And, in case I am discovered, will not be caught like a rat in a trap."

"You can appear as a traveler. You must have a hat. I will bring you one. At the first opportunity after dark I'll come to the trap and knock. Follow me down stairs. I don't think any one will recognize you in these clothes. They have been packed away since my brother went to Virginia a year ago. Mammi only saw you, when you were here before, after dark on the veranda, and—well, I think there will be a very good chance for you to play guest without detection."

"The servants?"

"They would never betray a Yankee. They think you are all coming down to free them, and they'll have nothing to do but lie in the sun."

"Not an unpleasant occupation on a pleasant day," said Mark irrelevantly.

"Should anything happen, I only fear mammi. And, after all, she is a woman," she added significantly.

"Which you pretend not to be."

"If all goes well you will be assigned a room—the guest chamber perhaps—and if it is not safe for you to be down stairs, you may feign to be ill and keep your apartment."

Mark was better pleased with the plan than remaining where he was. He did not expect to remain in the house longer than till the next night, when he hoped those who were seeking for him would become tired of his hunt and give him a chance for his life.

"As soon as it grew dark Mark followed for the signal. It came a few minutes before nine o'clock. Mrs. Fain had remained in the parlor up to that moment, when she went up stairs to get some article necessary to a piece of work she was doing. Laura followed her, turning out the lights by the way and keeping on up to the attic.

Within a few seconds after her knock Mark was descending the stairs and in a twinkling was in the parlor. Not half an minute elapsed between the signal and his arrival there.

It was not long before Mrs. Fain was heard groping about up stairs in the dark, wanting to know who had turned out the lights and calling on a servant to re-light them. When she entered the parlor she was surprised to see her daughter in company with a stranger, who was standing, but in hand, as though he had just come in from without.

"Mamma," said Laura, with her heart in her throat, but with the most assured of innocent tones, "this is a gentleman who—Mr."

"Rhet," supplied Mark.

"Mr. Rhet, of—"

"South Carolina."

Substitute for Confetti.
The time may be opportune for an appeal to inventors to consider the urgent need there is for some substitute for confetti. To admit that rice was had is not to make the substitute any better. It is comparatively painless when thrown, but the absolute impossibility of removing it from clothes or carpets without picking it off by individual particles should be enough of itself to condemn it in the eyes of all reasonable people.

On the Half Shell in Alaska.
Up in Alaska the nearest approach they have to the oyster is the sea urchin. The redskins up there love the brutes. They catch them all day long, crunch them in their fists, gulp down the orange-colored clusters of eggs and fling the thorny shell back into the ocean. Sea urchins have been the chief delicacy of Alaskan Indians since time out of mind, and it shows what will go in a pinch.

Land and Nautical Miles.
In considering the speed of a steamship, it must be remembered that a knot, or nautical mile, is a very different thing from a land mile. A mile is 5,280 feet, while a knot is 6,080 feet and a fraction. Therefore, when a vessel makes 22.05 knots an hour, she passes over very nearly 27 land miles.

The Foundation of All Lord & Thomas Successes

Experience, Information and Strategy

We have put into print, for the first time in our history, the chief reasons for our success.

This step has involved the revelation of secrets, long considered too valuable to print.

Our purpose here is to offer that book, and convince you that you should have it.

For forty years, for a thousand concerns, we have acted as selling advisers.

These concerns, in most part, dominate their lines. They are managed by some of the ablest men whom the business world has developed.

In all of those thousand selling experiences there is no plan or problem, no mistake or success, with which we are not familiar.

Our business has been, in this vortex of experiment, to learn the right and the wrong. Then to pick from the right the one best way—the quickest, cheapest, most efficient way—to accomplish each selling purpose.

Our new book illustrates, by many examples, how much such a mine of experience means.

A good many advertisers guess at conditions. They act on unfounded assumptions.

We have found that our guesses—and we guess pretty well—are as often wrong as right.

So we now make a canvass from house to house, from store to store, from town to town, before we map out a campaign. We learn if people will buy, and why they will buy. We measure up trade conditions.

Our book points out how information has saved many situations. How many successes, otherwise inconceivable, have been won without risk. How many errors, leading to disaster, have been avoided by it.

Perhaps it will change your whole plan of procedure.

The largest rewards are not won by mere advertising. They are won by maneuvers—cheap, quick and decisive.

The work of years is now done in a month. National distribution is accomplished at once. New products are made to earn profits immediately.

Substitution is fought and competition defeated by Strategy rather than attack. The clever has supplanted the clumsy.

This new science in advertising—the Science of Strategy—is revealed for the first time in this new book.

These are the basis of all our famous successes—Experience, Information and Strategy. We employ them in each undertaking.

How we employ them, and with what results, are told in this book—the most valuable book ever written on advertising. From cover to cover it is filled with ideas adaptable to every business.

It will also give you a new conception of our prowess and our powers. That's why we send it out.

If you deal with selling problems, cut out this reminder; put it in your pocket. Then, when convenient, write us for the book.

Thackeray's Rockless Feet.

It may be feared that some people will find proof of Thackeray's possession of a lively sense of humor in the story that he once put his feet out of a back window while riding through a Boston street.

When we consider the narrowness and crookedness of those thoroughfares, it isn't the humor, but the wild recklessness of Thackeray's feet that most impresses us.

Natural History.

Ancient Artificial Eyes.

Artificial eyes were first made use of by the Egyptians; they were of gold and silver and subsequently of copper and ivory. Hundreds of years later, in the sixteenth century, when they were made in Europe, porcelain was the substance used, and the maker usually stamped his address on the white of the eye.
